THE NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES WORKSHOP

Everything You Need to Know

Whether you're a seasoned veteran or new to the National Register (NR) process, the half-day National Register of Historic Places workshop is for you. The workshop will cover the procedure of listing a property on the National Register, the timelines involved, the registration requirements and the specifics on how to complete a NR form. Attendees will learn about what being "listed" in the National Register really means, how nominations are prepared (yes, you can do it!), and how information on a building's history is organized and presented.

Michael Houser, Architectural Historian, for the Office of Archaeology & Historic Preservation, will guide workshop participants through a step-by-step process on how to complete the NR form. Houser will specifically discuss issues like historical significance and architectural integrity, the use of digital photography and color copies, large vs. small USGS maps, and the production of site maps and floor plans.

The National Register is our nation's official "listing" of historic buildings, districts, structures, sites, and objects of state and local, as well as national importance, maintained by the National Park Service. Properties are listed through an application process that is consistent throughout the entire U.S. Nomination forms come from (or for) property owners, are submitted to the State Historic Preservation Office and reviewed by a professional state board, and then forwarded to the Park Service for final consideration. For specific information please contact Michael Houser at (360) 586-3076 or michaelh@cted.wa.gov.

This casual workshop will be held June 4th and July 9th in Spokane and Tacoma respectively. Attendees are asked to register with OAHP prior to the workshop.
